Summary: How to update profile information and manage product, security, and marketing notifications.

Update profile information

Open Account Settings and select Profile to update your display name, company name, time zone, or preferred language.

Changes to the primary sign-in email may require email verification before they become active.

Notification types

Security notifications include password changes, new sign-ins, and two-factor authentication updates. These messages cannot always be disabled because they protect account security.

Product notifications include feature updates, service announcements, and usage notices.

Marketing messages include newsletters and promotional content and can be disabled from communication preferences.

Unsubscribe from marketing email

Use the unsubscribe link in a marketing email or disable marketing messages in Account Settings under Notifications.

Unsubscribing from marketing messages does not disable transactional messages such as invoices, password resets, or security alerts.

Email address changes

When changing the primary email address, a verification message is sent to the new address. The new address becomes active after verification.

If you no longer have access to the old email address and cannot sign in, contact support for account recovery.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Can I disable password-reset emails?

A: No. Password-reset emails are transactional security messages and are only sent when a reset is requested.

Q: Why am I still receiving invoices after opting out of marketing?

A: Invoices are transactional billing messages and are not controlled by marketing preferences.
